

For guaranteed accuracy ...
there's no other choice

Only with Natus supplies is the ALGO screener's published accuracy guaranteed

- Supplies are designed specifically to obtain optimal ALGO results
- Clinical studies were conducted with ALGO screener and supplies to validate testing accuracy¹
- Clinical data was gathered from large infant populations in real-life clinical environments¹

Flexicoupler® earphones are essential for optimal performance

- ALGO earphones' proprietary acoustic properties are key to ALGO screening accuracy – non-ALGO earphones may compromise results²
- ALGO earphones are manufactured under strict quality and technical standards – non-ALGO earphones will not meet specifications required for Natus products
- Patented ALGO cable-to-earphone connection delivers uniform sound to baby's ears

ALGO earphones and Jelly Tab® sensors allow fast and simple screening

Provide secure and comfortable attachment

- Sensors and earphones designed to stay in place throughout testing
- Earphones form a consistent seal around baby's ears – reducing test time
- Earphones' flexible design conforms to a variety of head shapes
- Adhesive is gentle on neonatal skin³

Facilitate proper connection and removal

- Transparent design of earphones ensures correct placement around baby's ears
- Purple colored tabs on sensors allow precise connection of sensor cable to sensor
- Unique tabs on earphones and sensors allow for easy removal

¹Clinical data on file at Natus.

²Published, peer-reviewed clinical studies have not been conducted to validate non-ALGO earphones' equivalency to Natus earphones.

³Flexicoupler® earphones and Jelly Tab® sensors utilize a hydrogel adhesive.
